THE COTTON MARKET Was again lifeless yesterday. Buyers complained that nobody would sell, while factors were grumbling that nobody would buy. The fact was, there was a good deal of looking around for "soft spots" and those spots were not as plentiful as they appeared to be the day before. Holders were mostly desirous of awaiting the termination of the holidays at Liverpool, and finding what quotations are there. This desire to hold over spoiled the "soft spots," except in the case of some lots of ow cottons. Among the sales were ordinary to good ordinary at 13c, good or-dinary at 13jc; low middling at 14 7-16c; stocks are becoming small with decreasmiddling at 15c; middling to good middling at 15 c.
